Chevron chooses Reynobond[®] for more than good looks

When Chevron embarked on a five-year initiative to improve station appearance, the company's decision makers sought materials and partners they could count on. One choice was Reynobond ACM. Updated station canopies are clad in 1,500 square feet of Reynobond, selected for cost-efficiency, durability and the exceptional customer service behind the brand. The choice was also driven by Reynobond's Duragloss[®] paint finish, which proved an affordable alternative to competitors' finishes and provided excellent color consistency from one station to the next. From inspiration to implementation, no one's dedicated to your success like the people of Alcoa Architectural Products.
