

Community update

Anglesea

Alcoa releases draft Concept Master Plan for Anglesea site

Following comprehensive consultation regarding its draft Mine Rehabilitation and Closure Plan last year, Alcoa of Australia is now inviting the community to provide feedback on a draft Concept Master Plan for its freehold landholdings in Anglesea.

The draft plan, produced for community feedback, proposes possible future land uses for four areas of freehold land Alcoa owns including at the former power station site, within the former mine, and adjacent to the Anglesea township. The draft plan also incorporates potential changes to the existing land tenure arrangements, consistent with the Anglesea Futures Draft Land Use Plan, to facilitate the realisation of the proposed land use directions.

The integrated plan recognises the role Alcoa's land could play in:

- connecting people to Anglesea's valued landscapes;
- creating a new tourism destination for Anglesea and the Great Ocean Road; and
- creating economic opportunities for Anglesea and the wider region.

Alcoa Site Asset Manager Warren Sharp said more than two years of community and stakeholder consultation had preceded the release of the plan.

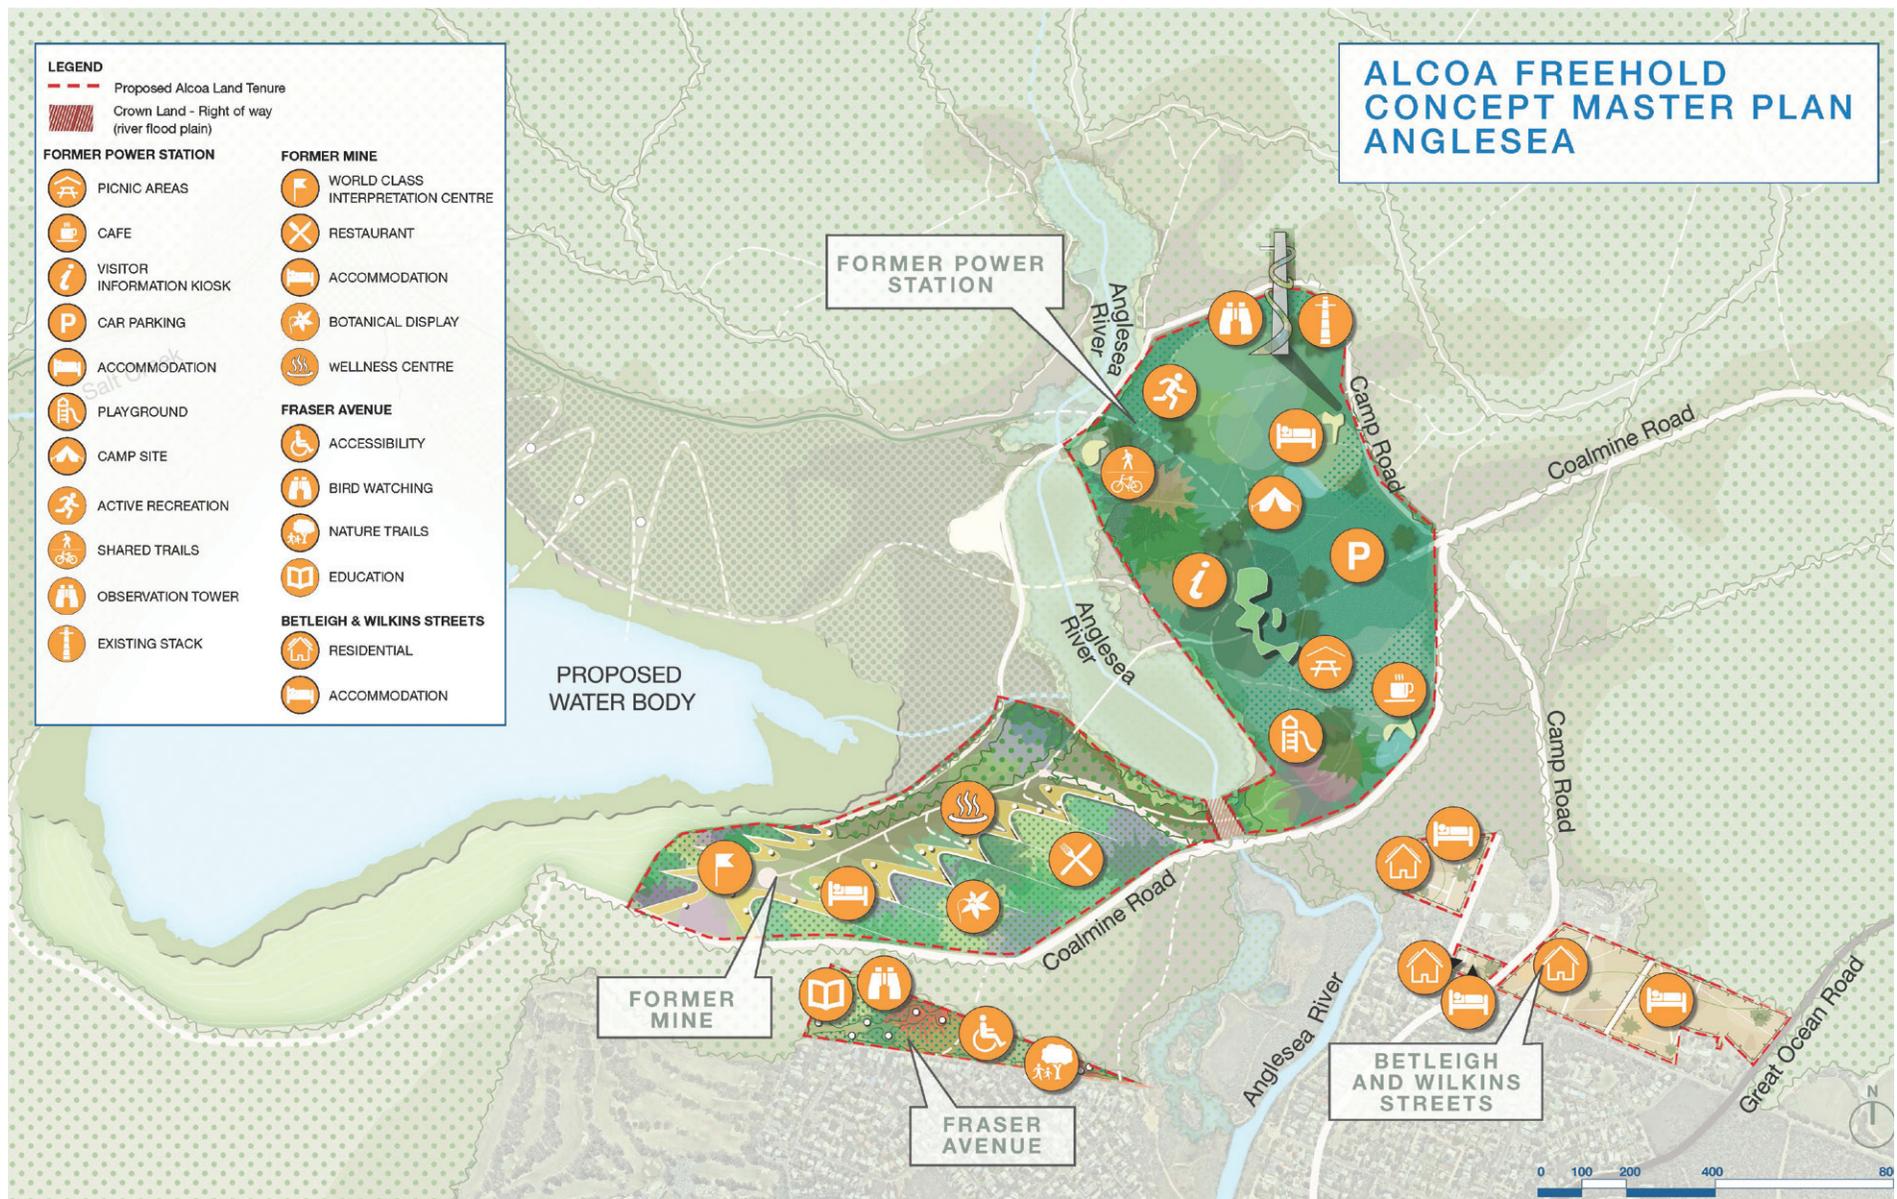

"The draft Concept Master Plan is informed by a range of inputs including broad community consultation, consideration of the site's natural attributes and histories, future economic opportunities for Anglesea and the wider region, and key planning documents including the Anglesea Futures Draft Land Use Plan and the Anglesea Structure Plan.

"The draft plan provides an approach that is sensitive to the future environmental and economic needs of Anglesea through providing opportunities for people to be connected to the valued environmental assets on our doorstep."

Mr Sharp said when considered alongside the aspirations in the Anglesea Futures Draft Land Use Plan released recently by the Victorian Government Department Environment Land Water Planning, Alcoa's landholdings had the opportunity to deliver widespread benefits for the Anglesea community and the wider region.

Community feedback on the draft plan to help inform Alcoa's submission to the Anglesea Futures land planning process, is welcome.

Download the draft plan: engage-anglesea.alcoa.com.au

The draft Concept Master Plan for Alcoa freehold land in Anglesea

Share Your Views

Alcoa welcomes the community's feedback about the draft plan to then help inform Alcoa's submission to the Anglesea Futures land planning process. There are three drop-in sessions to view the plan, speak to Alcoa and its master planning consultants, and share your views. You can also complete the online survey or write to Alcoa.

- Sunday 11 February, 12noon to 3:00pm
Anglesea Memorial Hall
 - Monday 12 February, 2:30pm to 5:30pm
Anglesea Memorial Hall
 - Thursday 15 February, 2:30pm to 5:30pm
Outside the Anglesea IGA supermarket
- Complete the online survey
engage-anglesea.alcoa.com.au
- Email or write to Alcoa
angleseaps@alcoa.com.au
Alcoa of Australia, Camp Road, Anglesea VIC 3230

